DISINTEGRATING EUROPE The Twilight of the European Construction Noriko Hama

Since the Maastricht Treaty of December 1991, Europe has experienced rising nationalism and regionalism—with both centrifugal effects working against union—and above all, scepticism toward the union concept itself. As certain member states fragment or turn inward, a turning-point in history has been reached: it is the end of the post-war Europe. As such, is it even necessary for Europe to be united at all? Is the unification ideal too large a political concept? Is the ideal of European unification dying, and have the concepts enshrined in the Maastricht Treaty become museum pieces? These are among the incisive questions asked by writer-economist Noriko Hama, in Disintegrating Europe. This approach is dramatic, readable, and compelling, and represents the first time that so qualified an economic commentator has attempted a "big picture" view of the future of the European unification project.
